

Comparing Increase in Relative Average Family Income in the 1990s
For "Older" and "1960s" Outside Central City Neighborhoods

A Census Tract's Average Family Income Relative to its Metropolitan Average Family Income is reported here as having "Increased" if it grew by at least 2.5%. A Census Tract is considered "older" if it had 1.5 times or more the metropolitan proportion of housing built Pre-1940. Similarly, a Census Tract is considered to be 1960s if it had 1.5 times or more the metropolitan proportion of housing built during the decade of 1960s.

From: W.H.Lucy and D.L.Phillips, Tomorrow's Cities, Tomorrow's Suburbs, APA Planners Press, 2006.